

Urban residents in conditions of high access to food and high urban integration outside slums are, in proportional terms, 69 times the number of residents in slums under the same conditions

